Lac La Biche Chamber Of Commerce Discusses Campsites, Plans 'Spiel

LAC LA BICHE—Despite running the hazard of the curling season, as all organizations do, the Lac la Biche chamber of commerce held its regular meeting February 2. Drawmaster for the chamber of commerce scheduling, Ed Garnet, oversaw the house. The two full teams and pair of spares present laid plans for a farmer's bonspiel, for an approach to the government of Alberta for five more roadside campsites, and completed their plans for the ordering of tourist folders advertizing Lac la Biche. The chamber of commerce seminar which was to have taken place Feb. 2, was tentatively deferred to the week of March 6 due to the inability of the proposed seminar leader of the Alberta chambers of commerce to be present.

Suggested by Stan Powers, the idea of a farmer's bonspiel was immediately received with enthusiasm. The basic idea of the project is for the town's established curling enthusiasts to act as a nucleus of skips and then each of the skips to find three farmers to complete his club. The event is scheduled to take place Feb. 24 and 25, with provision for 16 rinks. At the time of writing the event is already showing signs of gathering interest.

Roadside campsites are proposed for areas adjacent to the Mission, the golf course, Pinehurst Lake, Missawawi Lake and on Big Island Park.

Farmer's Bonspiel Plans Completed

The chamber of commerce committee, planning a farmer's bonspiel in Lac la Biche, reports that plans are now laid for the dates of Feb. 24 and 25.

Provisions have been made to accommodate 16 rinks. Skips of the teams may be any curling enthusiast, but the remainder of the team must be comprised of farmers. Skips will be accepted on a first come first served basis. Harry Lobay and Stan Powers are acting as registrars of teams.

The project is being staged by the local chamber of commerce to give recognition to the important part that the country plays in the life of Lac la Biche town.

How To Get A Ready-Made Family --- Now

By T. W. PUE

For several months the Minister of Public Welfare in Ontario has been carrying on a noble experiment in the cause of human happiness. In newspapers published throughout the province, his department runs classified advertisements like this in the Toronto Daily Star:

T. W. PUE

76 Personal

Children For Adoption

FAMILY of 3 boys and 2 girls: David 7, Peggy 6, Andy 5, Eleanor 3, John 2. THESE children are Protestant, of Anglo-Saxon Canadian background; all are in good health and of normal development. They are average in height and weight, have fine features, fair complexions, blue eyes and blonde to light brown hair. They are active, interested youngsters, quick to respond to love and attention. Their real parents were not able to care for them adequately and so, recently, these children were taken into the care of a Children's Aid Society. As brothers and sisters they want to be together again and need loving, warm-hearted parents capable of providing a permanent home and the normal opportunities every child needs.

IF you would be interested in adopting these children and giving them the security and affection they have missed, please write to:

The Minister of Public Welfare
Parliament Buildings, Toronto

Isn't it a bit unusual to advertise children for adoption? Yes—but it is getting results in Ontario! There are childless couples everywhere who need to know about children who are up for adoption. There are plenty of wonderful, deserving children who need homes, and mothers and fathers to look after them.

In the interests of human happiness, wouldn't it be a good idea for Alberta to follow Ontario's example and advertise children for adoption?

Peanut Inhaled By 3-Year-Old Child

PLAMONDON — Deborah Belanger, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Belanger, inhaled a shelled peanut recently. While eating peanuts and playing with her aunt she began to laugh and suddenly inhaled a peanut. As soon as this happened the local municipal nurse was called, and on examining the child's condition rushed her to Lac la Biche.

On X-raying the child the peanut was discovered lodged in the lung and Dr. Bouvier ordered the child rushed to Edmonton. The accident occurred at 4:45 p.m. and the parents arrived in Edmonton with Deborah at 10 p.m. at the Royal Alexandra Hospital.

Deborah was brought home the following day, and shows no ill results from the ordeal.

The parents are very grateful to all who helped in this emergency.

Some of the year's activities of the Home and School were: a workshop, when a member of the local Home and School Association was appointed as divisional supervisor, Rev. R. Greene, Dr. Walter Johns, now president of the University of Alberta was the main speaker at this workship.

Representatives of the traffic board spoke at a meeting co-sponsored by the school division and the Home and School Association.

The Home and School was successful in securing Miss Erica End as a piano teacher. Since fall Mrs. R. Joncas has continued as piano teacher.

Miss End's pupils rendered three piano recitals during 1959. These were extremely enjoyed and Miss End's work with the pupils was much appreciated by all the parents.

A program by the school pupils was presented in December, 1958 at which time the governor-general's medal and other gifts were presented to Kathleen Duban, Anita Senetza and Donna Hamar who were honor students.

Organization Eastern Orthodox Churches Varied In Government

This is the concluding article in a series by Rev. Fr. N. Stetzenko, L. Th., rector of the Ukrainian Greek Orthodox Church, Lac la Biche district. He has dealt with history and doctrine in previous articles. This week, he explains the organization of this church. Editor.

By Rev. Fr. N. Stetzenko, L.Th.
Rector, Ukrainian Greek Orthodox Church,
Lac La Biche district

There are three orders of the ministry: deacons, priests and bishops. The deacons assist in the work of the parish and in the service of the sacraments. The priests administer all the sacraments except the Sacrament of Holy Orders. The bishops administer all the holy sacraments.

Priests and deacons are of two orders: secular and monastic. Secular deacons and priests are ordained only after marriage. The Episcopate is confined to members of the monastic order. A widowed secular priest, taking monastic vows, is eligible for the episcopate. The Ukrainian Orthodox Church has a number of priests of the monastic order who have immigrated to Canada from Europe, but to date has not a monastary and these priests are caring for various parishes in Canada.

Where there are monasteries, monks or nuns are gathered in monastic establishments or may be scattered doing missionary work. In some monastic colonies the members live in communities, while others lead a secluded hemetical life, each in his (or her) own cell. There is but one order, and vows are the same for all: obedience, chastity, prayer, fasting and poverty.

The organization for the different Eastern Orthodox Churches is generally varied in government. In general, there is a Council, or Synod, at the head of which, as president, is a Bishop elected by the ecclesiastical representatives of the people. Historically, and in most instances even at present, this president Bishop is called the "Patriarch" or "Metropolitan" and has special colleagues and officers for the purpose of governments of his flock. A Bishop, inasfar as the government is concerned, may be known as an "Archbishop", "Metropolitan" or "Patriarch" depending on the responsibility of administration which he carries, but is not ordained as archbishop, metropolitan or patriarch and, as a bishop, is equal to all bishops in the Church. In primitive Christian times, both the clergy and the laity of the local churches had a voice in the election of Bishops, Priests and Deacons; but of late that right (in some Churches) has been restricted so that the priests and deacons are usually appointed by the bishops and the bishops are elected by the clergy.

In the Ukrainian Greek Orthodox Church of Canada the early form is used for the election of bishops through the Council of the Church which is composed of clergy and laity. The clergy are appointed by the Bishop and the Board of Consistory. Parish appointments are made through the decision of the Board of Consistory with the assent of the Bishop.

The Board of Consistory of 18 members (nine clergy and nine lay) are elected at a Council of the Church which is held every five years. The head of the Board of Consistory is the ruling Bishop of the Church. The Board meets as often as necessary, but at least once a year. During the interim periods matters of a routine na-

THE Homemaker

By BERTHA M. McCUTCHEON

All of you are concerned with getting good value for your money whether you have a spending plan (budget) or not.

APPLIANCE BUYMANSHIP

B. McCutcheon

1. A reliable dealer will give you authentic information. He is more interested in satisfied customers than a large volume of sales.
2. A good buy is usually the medium priced article. Avoid the upper bracket appliances with numerous complicated controls such as the automatic washer with the electronic computer.
3. Buy from manufacturers who stand behind their product with a good service policy and a good product.
4. If you live far from a large centre it is usually advisable to buy from a local dealer who will service your appliances.

Today's household appliances, with their timers, thermostats and delicate controls have up to ten times as many working parts as the former manually operated appliances. It is estimated that the total cost of service on all products including automobiles and appliances now average $300 per family per year.

A warranty is the manufacturer's written acknowledgement of responsibility for the replacement of parts that have failed within a specified period of time, usually one year. Generally a sealed refrigeration mechanism and in some cases the transmission of the automatic washer, is covered for an additional four years. Some manufacturers agreements with their dealers require that they provide free labor to the customer during the one-year period. Other dealers provide appliance service contracts to cover the one-year warranty period for a charge of $10 or more depending upon the appliance and whether installation services are included. A few provide service contracts beyond the warranty period.

Servicemen state up to 40 percent of service calls made during the warranty period are caused by not following instructions in the "Use and Care" booklet. Homemakers can reduce appliance servicing costs by insisting upon a thorough demonstration before using the appliance — servicemen should not be expected to do this. Also review the written warranty with the dealer so that you understand what is, and what is not covered.

Organization Eastern Orthodox Churches

ture are carried out by the Executive of the Board which is headed by the President of the Executive (a Priest).

The Ukrainian Orthodox Church in Canada is divided, for purpose of government into three dioceses: Eastern (Toronto), Central (Winnipeg) and Western (Edmonton). Each is headed by a Bishop and the three by Metropolitan.

The Services of the Ukrainian Orthodox Church (and all Orthodox Churches) are elaborate. Services are essentially those of the earlier centuries of Christianity. These are most fully and completely observed in the monasteries. In Canada the services of the Liturgy (Mass), Vespers, Matins and Special Prayers are commonly served. The Church, besides these, has Vigils, Hours and other services for all needs and times.

The most important service is the Divine Liturgy (Mass), the chief part of which is the celebration of the Eucharist. There are three Liturgies: That of St. John Chrysostom, that of St. Basil the Great and that of St. Gregory. The last is called "the Liturgy of the Presanctified Gifts" because the Gifts are prepared at the preceeding service. The service is celebrated during the weekdays of the Great Lent (pre-Easter). The Service of St. Basil is celebrated ten times during the year. At all other times the service of St. John Chrysostom is celebrated. The Orthodox Church does not have so-called "silent Liturgies" or "private Masses". Two Liturgies are not allowed to be performed in the same Church simultaneously; nor can a Liturgy be performed by the same Priest or on the same Altar twice a day. A "Corporal" otherwise known as an "Antimins" is necessary for the performance of the Liturgy. The Priest may celebrate the Divine Liturgy only when he is fasting.

Instrumental music (which is a substitution of voice) is not allowed in the Church. All services are sung by the reader, the deacons or by choirs. Literature: 1. History of Christian Church, by D. Doroschenko, D.D.; 2. An outline of the history of the Ukrainian Orthodox Church, by Prof. Ivan Wlasowsky; 3. Church Canon Law, by Metropolitan Ilarion, D.D.

Mr. & Mrs. E. Cadieux Celebrate Their 50th Wedding Anniversary

LAC LA BICHE—A family dinner at their home here Jan. 31, marked the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Esdras Cadieux, highly respected, long-time residents of the town. Three sons and three daughters, as well as an aunt of Mrs. Cadieux and a number of close relatives, were present for the happy occasion. Messages of congratulation were received from Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Jack Biggs, M.P. for Athabasca, and Lieut-Gov. J. Percy Page, as well as many beautiful gifts and cards. One prized gift is a golden colored German warbler canary. Since Mrs. Cadieux is confined to her home this little songster will bring hours of enjoyment to his owners.

Married at Alfred, Ont., Jan. 31, 1910, the young couple came to western Canada that same year. Travelling to Edmonton by train, they drove from there with horses to their farmstead in the Colinton district where they lived for 13 years. Deciding that perhaps their old home was better after all, they went back to Quebec for two years. Here they had much sickness, and here two of their nine children were taken from this life. Again they decided that Alberta was the best place to live and, coming west again, they came to the Lac la Biche district and lived at Frog Lake until they moved to their present home 24 years ago.

Mr. Cadieux ran the dairy in Lac la Biche for some 18 years. Though their health is sometimes not the best, Mr. Cadieux having undergone serious surgery on his left eye last fall, and Mrs. Cadieux more or less a shut in, their cheerful, optimistic outlook on life continues.

Sons and daughters present at the anniversary celebrations were: Arthur, Lac la Biche; Philip, Plamondon; Laurette (Mrs. L. Schaub), Plamondon; Lucy (Mrs. Romeo Gervais), New Westminster, B.C.; Yvonne (Mrs. Oluf Slaatten), Colden, B.C.; Arphar, Frog Lake; also Mrs. Lea Lamoureux, aunt of Mrs. Cadieux, and her son Dona, of Clinton. Their eldest son, Henry, of Yellowknife, was unable to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Cadieux have 45 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. Mrs. Cadieux reports that her father, Godfrey Demers, of Hewkesbury, Ont., is still living at the age of 94 years, and is in excellent health. The best wishes of the community are extended to this well known and highly respected couple.

Sarrail

Visitors from Edmonton for the weekend included: Misses Joyce and Uanna Hewko, Mrs. Sophie Shwetz and Mr. and Mrs. Nick Basaraba and girls.

Many students from the district attended the show "Hunchback of Notre Dame" at the Lac la Biche theatre. After the show some of the group attended a wedding dance held in the Grassland Community Hall for Miss Madaline Gregus and Mr. Mike Evenchusky.

Peter Marchak has been a recent visitor in Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hewko were recent guests of relatives in Lamont.

Peter and Bill Rosak spent some time visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hewko recently.

Prepare For Race Of Spacemen

By VAL SEARS (Copyright, Toronto Telegram)

Far out in star-misted reaches of galactic space moves an asteroid, one mile in diameter and travelling at 670 million miles an hour. Inside the asteroid, warmed by a hydrogen fusion "sun," fed on the products of artificially stimulated plants and animals, educated, entertained, married, born and buried, live a small colony of space adventurers. They are on their way to a star system—61 Cygni or 70 Ophiuchi perhaps—millions upon millions of light years away.

The original colonists will die in space, their children may alight on a new planet with only a dim memory of their home world.

And if, as a result of some curious racial pull, the offspring of these galactic children wish to return to earth, they will find that thousands of years have passed and life is awesome or no longer exists.

Fantasy? No, simply an extension of the theoretical possibilities of space travel envisioned by men who are preparing for it.

The cosmic Noah's Ark—populated by men and women who have contracted to die for knowledge—is only one of the techniques being considered to overcome the immense distances involved in inter-galactic travel.

Another is suspended animation, the "death sleep" that travellers would undergo while their ship carries them to new worlds.

The asteroid ark's success is predicted on man's absolute domination of the moon environment so that by 1990 a "space establishment" there will be able to launch deep space vessels free from earth's gravitational pull.

Out beyond Mars is an asteroid belt suitable for construction of the ship.

Mining techniques, now under study, involving "ball lightening" devices capable of ripping the earth apart in seconds would be used to hollow out the bit of cosmic wreckage.

The powerplant would be a sophisticated extension of Kiwi-A nuclear reactor being designed under Project Rover scientists in the United States.

It's unlimited power would spew out photons providing a light-speed drive.

The ill-fated British Zeta hydrogen-fusion machine will be the basis of techniques for heat and light inside the ship.

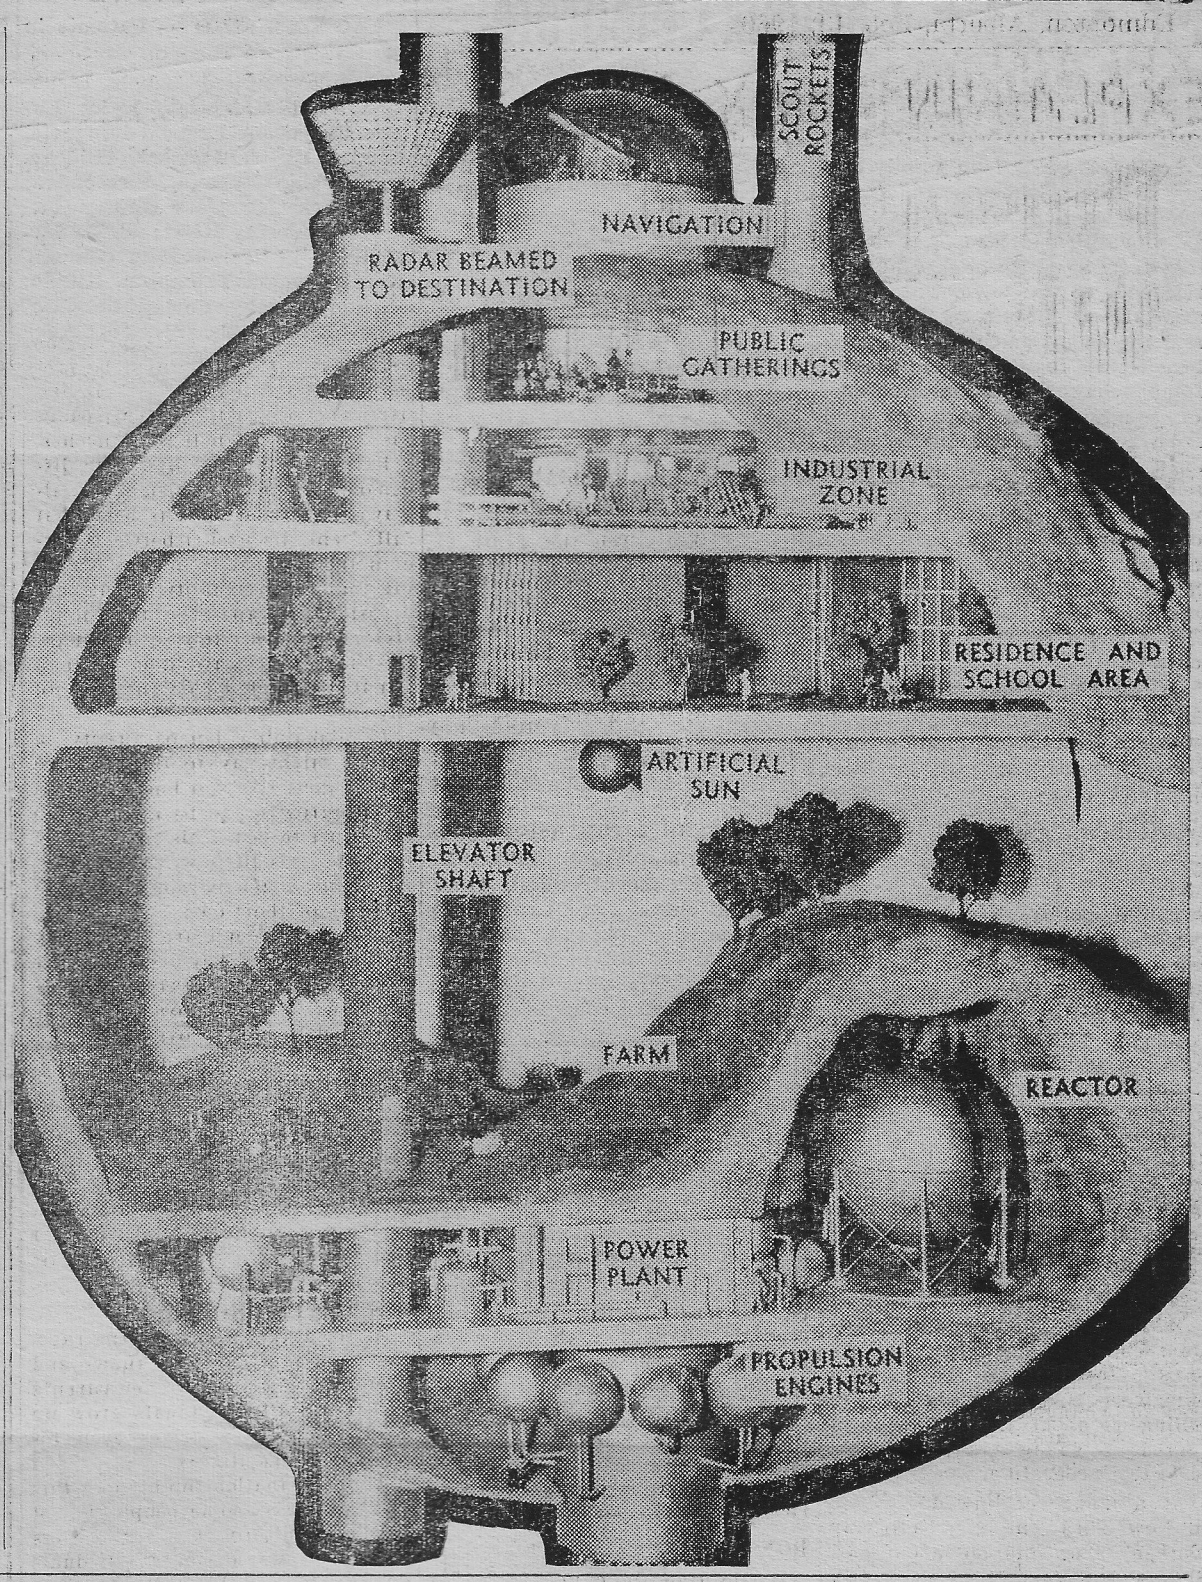
Hydroponic tanks growing algae for food and to replenish oxygen would furnish basic foodstuffs although a yen for a steak or an egg would be occasionally satisfied by the farm aboard.

The industrial plants within the asteroid will be able to synthesize plastics, dyes, medicines, acids and resins from basic elements such as nitrogen, hydrogen, carbon, oxygen, etc., supplying endless variations on required materials.

Telescopic views of the planet ahead or earth behind should provide endless entertainment.

Because of their speed, and the application of the Lorenze contra tion and Einstein's theory time will appear to pass 200 times as fast and life on the new planet will speed past their telescopic vision.

And then — perhaps 15 generations from the time they left—man will land on his new stellar home and Terrans will be true citizens of space.



Design New $8 Million Airport For Jet Age

Air traffic will be using the Edmonton International Airport at Nisku, about 16 miles south of Edmonton, sometime this summer. This is when a $700,000 temporary terminal building is scheduled for completion by Northwest Industries Ltd. of Edmonton who were awarded the contract by the Federal Department of Transport.

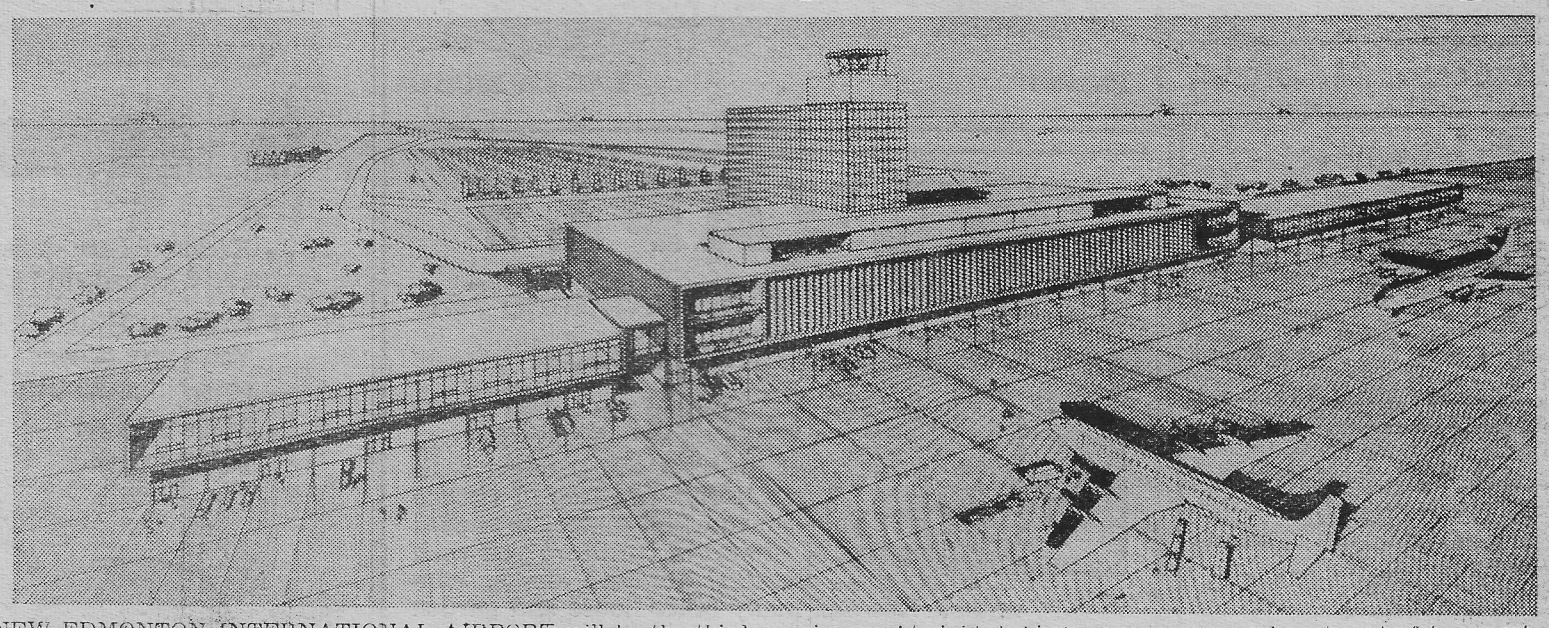
The permanent terminal building pictured here is an $8,000,000 structure designed for the jet age by the Edmonton firm of Rensaa and Minsos. The estimated overall period for completion of the terminal building and related structures is 2½ years.

Next to Montreal and Toronto Edmonton will have Canada's third largest airport. This is why the planning for permanent buildings has kept in mind the needs of the jet age. Many problems were involved, such as facilities for jet airliners costing $5,500,000 and upward and carrying 140 passengers or more.

The terminal building is designed for maximum passenger convenience and smoothness of operation. One of the main ideas is to reduce the time required for passengers to get on and off aircraft.

"It will be a full-fledged international airport," said the architect.

The main terminal structure will have an overall length of 900 feet. This includes a main section 450 feet in length and 160 feet wide.



NEW EDMONTON INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT will be the third largest in Canada. The 900 by 160 foot permanent terminal building is shown in this drawing by Rensaa and Minsos, design architects and engineers. At right, behind, is a nine-storey department of transport building where a control tower, regional aviation forecast office and other services will be located. At the left rear, is a heating plant.

For passengers departing from the airport, there is an entrance ramp leading to the main floor which will contain ticketing and baggage handling facilities. It is planned later to have a telescope gangplank which will convey passengers directly to their seats on the plane. At the start, regular departure gates on the ground floor will be used.

Passengers arriving from planes will enter at the ground floor level where customs, immigration and baggage facilities will be provided.

Along the entire building, there will be eight gates and two auxiliary gates. Each gate will be served by a departure room.

MAIN SECTION

In the main section, there will be a dining room, lounge, coffee shop, rest rooms, nursery room, and 12 roomettes, six for men and six for women, who may be stopping for a few hours while waiting to transfer to another plane.

The roof of the main building will be open to the public for watching arriving or departing planes. A small admission charge will be made.

Dr. A. O. Minsos said to facilitate free flow of passengers, facilities for arrival and departure are separate.

At each end of the terminal building, there will be waiting and departure rooms for the convenience of passengers.

The main section will contain numerous stores and concession spaces. There also will be a post office and a bank.

CONTROL TOWER

Located adjacent to the main building is a department of transport building, with a control tower at the top 150 feet from the ground. This building of nine storeys will contain the regional aviation forecast office, air traffic control centre, communications office, radar equipment, weather report offices, all of which now are located at the municipal airport here.

The terminal building will contain many materials including steel, brick, concrete, glass in abundance and glazed tile.

Dr. Minsos said the airport, two miles west of the Calgary-Edmonton main highway, is not patterned after any other airport.

"We have seen those in other parts of Canada, the U.S. and in other places. This is designed especially for Edmonton and none will have any better facilities," he said.

EXPLAINING SEX

Parenthood Without Hokum

By Howard Whitman

PART 11

Howard Whitman is also the author of "Let's Tell the Truth About Sex—A Basic Guide for Parents," winner of the Parents' Magazine award for best books for parents.)

TELLING YOUR CHILD ABOUT LIFE

The girl was 16 and lovely looking. She came from a fine home, good neighborhood. In the course of a few minutes in Juvenile Court, Cleveland, she told of having intimate relations on a number of occasions during the previous four weeks. Her parents were shocked beyond belief. From the girl's fresh, innocent appearance even courtroom attendants were astounded. An experienced lawyer came out into the corridor with a worried look. All he said was, "I have a daughter 16."

It is natural for parents of teen-agers to be concerned about sex delinquency just as it is natural for parents of seven-year-olds to be concerned about crossing streets.

Howard Whitman

There is danger involved, and—just as with crossing streets— it is the parents' job to warn of the danger, to discuss it, and help protect the child from it.

A reader recently sent me a religious tract entitled, "I Accuse My Parents!" One of the things the parents were accused of was "never telling me about sex." I have seen scores of youngsters who could level this accusation.

At a home for unwed mothers in New York, one girl said, "My mother never told me about sex. She said it wasn't nice to talk about."

A boy in a homosexuality case in New York Magistrate's Court said, "My Dad let me find out for myself."

When a number of boys and girls were involved in a sex delinquency ring in a small town in Illinois, the mother of one girl said, "You certainly can't blame this on me. Sex was never discussed in our home!"

This is one source of the trouble. We have learned through bitter experience that the silent treatment just doesn't work. Today all our major religions agree—and our doctors and psychologists as well—that it is not only the parents' prerogative but it is the parents' vital duty to tell their children about life. And this means the complete, true story of the male- female relationship.

The notion that children can be protected by ignorance is archaic today, when teen-agers are no longer cosseted beneath the family wing until they get married. They go out into the world where challenging and sometimes dangerous experiences await them. Better to have them armed with knowledge than vulnerably ignorant.

HOW TO TELL THEM

Let's assume most parents want to do right by their youngsters; they want to tell them about life. How shall they go about it?

There are two fundamentals:

1. Tell the truth. Youngsters should not be given fables or half-truths. These will only boomerang later on when the child learns about sex from other youngsters. Most children are exposed at one time or other to varieties of gutter information on the subject, and the whole truth told to them by their parents is their strongest armor.

A Catholic handbook for girls points out, "The truth about sex—that is, God's idea of sex—is not something to be told you in an emotional whisper—sex is neither startling nor disgusting; it is perfectly simple because God made it. It only becomes complicated and repellent when men and women take it out of its setting in God's plan."

From the time of the child's first sex questions (usually at age three or four), truthful answers should be given. This does not mean that parents must explain to young children the entire story of life when the first, groping question is asked. For example:

Question—Where do babies come from? Answer—Babies come from their mothers' bodies. All babies are inside their mothers' bodies before they are born.

DON'T WAIT

By the time the child has reached the teen years he or she will have, through natural curiosity and honest answers, acquired a fairly complete knowledge of sex. Upon this foundation any and all questions, regardless of how complicated, can be discussed. It is unsatisfactory, as many parents have found out, to neglect the matter entirely until the child is 13 or 14 and then try to tell it all in one hushed and embarrassed "session."

But what about parents who have missed the boat and now want to make up for it?

They must assume that their child already knows a great deal about sex from outside sources. And they must never try to make it all up in one talk. The best approach is to initiate a series of talks, perhaps at weekly intervals, in which they can establish a relationship of confidence and free discussion which they have failed to establish before.

2. It's attitude, not anatomy. Let's face it, very few parents lack the factual material they need to tell their children about sex. You don't have to be a doctor to tell how babies are born.

OUR OWN ATTITUDE

The thing which stumps parents and makes them freeze up is their own attitude and our cultural attitude toward sex. We have never quite accepted it completely because we have failed to distinguish between its healthy, moral and sacred uses in God's plan for marriage and parenthood, and its neurotic and tawdry abuses.

If parents can clarify in their own minds that they are talking to children about God's basic plan for human beings they might easily lose some of their shyness. It would be good for the children, too, for they could understand sex as a noble attribute of living rather than something to be ashamed of.

Dr. Abraham Franzblau, a specialist in pastoral psychiatry at the New York branch of Hebrew Union College, declared, "When parents reach sexual maturity themselves, they will have no trouble conveying wholesome sex attitudes to their children."

SPECIAL PROBLEMS

But beyond the "facts of life" there are some special problems for which teen-agers must be prepared. As a consultant to the Department of Pastoral Services of the National Council of Churches, I have participated in many discusions of these problems and always the consensus has been that full, frank discussion between parents and youngsters is best. Knowing that homosexuality, sexual aggression and rape exist, the youngster is far less likely to be caught off-guard and inveilgled into a situation which he or she did not expect.

In explaining homosexuality, a parent might say to the teen-age boy or girl: "As you know, normal people grow up to be attracted to the opposite sex. This is perfectly healthy. It is life's way of preparing them to get married and raise families of their own.

"But some people are not healthy in this respect. They are unhealthy in that they are attracted to the same sex. If a boy grows up and is attracted to other boys instead of to girls, and if this persists and becomes serious, we say he is a homosexual. The same is true if a girl grows up seriously and persistently attracted to other girls rather than to boys. Not many people grow up this way, fortunately, for this is an unhealthy condition and requires a psychiatrist's or physician's care."

DISTORTED URGES

As for sexual agression and rape, the teen-ager should know—and preferably from his or her parents—that not all individuals grow up with healthy sex drives even toward the opposite sex.

The explanation might take this form: 'Just as some people do not develop healthily in other aspects of their lives, so some individuals do not develop healthily in their sexual lives. And so, instead of growing up to seek out a mate whom they love, their sexual urges become distorted and ugly. They may try to force or to steal sexual gratification. They may use the sex drive as a means of aggressing upon other people, simply using and humiliating them, instead of as an expression of love and the respect that goes with love."

But don't think the job is entirely negative.

It is vital, too, that parents stress the positive, joyous, supremely gratifying aspects of the sex relationship in happy marriage. Youngsters are idealistic and aspirational by nature, and if this goal is held out to them in its true attractiveness they will be greatly inspired to seek after it.
